FOOD SITUATION IN GERMANY KEPT COAL OUTPUT LOW

As Difficulties Are Overcome, Further Rise in Output is Expected

COTTON IS RECEIVED

Delivered to German Processors; Some Then Exported To Pay Costs

Here is the fourth in a series of illuminating articles on industrial and economic conditions in Germany culled from an official report made to the United States military government by an acknowledged authority in his field. The author is M. S. Szymczak former city controller of Chicago and until recently economic chief of OMGUS.

M. S. SZYMCKA
BERLIN, Aug. 1.—In 1946, the foreign trade of the American zone was almost entirely confined to the importation of foodstuffs and other essential goods by the occupation forces in order to prevent disease and unrest among the population. Such imports are financed by war department appropriations. The only other substantial import transaction was the shipment of some surplus American cotton held by the commodity credit corporation.

This cotton was delivered to German processors; the finished goods are being exported in an amount sufficient to pay for the cost of the imports, and the rest is available for German consumption.

In the fall of 1946, similar arrangements were made by American Military Government for the importation of raw materials required for the manufacture of ceramics, optical instruments, building materials, chemicals and toys.

The interim financing for these imports is handled by the U. S. Commercial Corporation, a subsidiary of the RFC. Exports from the American zone in 1946 were confined mainly to lumber and rope and a few industrial goods taken from existing inventories or produced from raw material stocks.

The amounts shipped were very small, in the neighborhood of three percent of the estimated pre-war exports of the zone's area.

Imports into the British zone were similar to those of the American zone, but exports from the British zone were considerably larger, due almost entirely to Ruhr coal.

Coal exports reached a weekly volume of 260,000 tons in the summer of 1946, or about 40 per cent of pre-war, but this involved heavy drafts on existing stocks and inadequate allocations to the needs of the German economy. As a result, exports of coal had to be reduced by about 30 per cent in the fall of 1946.

Even the peak figure in the summer of 1946 was far from sufficient to meet demands in the rest of Europe, and the reduction of coal exports was a heavy blow to the importing countries.

In the first months of 1947 exports had to be curtailed still further, reaching a low of 100,000 tons per week in February.

Meanwhile, however, the output of the Ruhr mines had risen and coal exports could be increased again. In April and May, the unsatisfactory food situation brought about some labor disturbances which kept coal output somewhat below the March peak.

As soon as these difficulties are overcome, a further rise in output is expected, and in that case exports will reach in summer a minimum of 265,000 tons per week, while at the same time allotments for the needs of the merged zones will be

A SUMMARY OF THE NEWS

British soldiers and police, enraged over the execution by Palestine terrorists of the two sergeants held as hostages, raided the all-Jewish city of Tel Aviv. In the indiscriminate shooting, five Jews were killed and many wounded.

Action by the United Nations Security Council on an Australian resolution to step into the Indonesian situation was deferred after the United States representative had announced an offer by his country to mediate between the Netherlands and the "so-called" Indonesian Republic. The Council will take up the matter again today. Dutch troops reported new gains and were cutting across Java against little resistance.

Greece called on the Council to invoke the drastic powers of Chapter VII of the United Nations Charter to halt the "undeclared war" being waged by Albania, Bulgaria and Yugoslavia. This raised the possibility that concerted action might be taken outside the United Nations because of the failure of the Council to act as a result of Russia's veto.

With Communists abstaining and left-wing Socialists voting no, Italy's Constituent Assembly authorized ratification of the peace treaty, 262 to 68.

The largest pet was a horse, the smallest were salamanders, and perhaps the most unusual two robins. Naturally, there were the more prosaic and affection compelling animals such as cats, dogs and rabbits.

PEEK INTO X'MAS

This may not be the time to mention it, but department store buyers have been taking the annual advance peek into the merchandise they will put into the toy departments for the Christmas trade.

Jubilantly, they report that it is going to be a great holiday season for the kids, the best since 1941. There will be greater variety of toys, and most of higher quality. Tricycles and pedal-operated automobiles will be back numbers. Metal playground equipment, long absent, will be back.

There will be many more electric trains than was the case last year, but the stores still will be on allotment as far as this item is concerned. New games and adaptations of old ones will make appearance. The rubber doll that sips water will have returned.

Something new is the magnetic village. A youngster, using in hand one pole of a magnet is enabled to guide toy automobiles into filling stations, or miniature planes along airport runways.

There will be little in the toy line to remind parents and kids of the late war. Included in the array will be numbers of mechanical items from England. The Germans in the American zone of occupation again are busy at toy-making, and catalogs of their products are beginning to appear in the United States.

And here is some sad news—tree lights again will be far short of demand. Although production of the colored light globes and their sockets is running heavy, the industry is "millions and millions of bulbs behind," one store buyer relates.

FLOWERS VS. FLIERS

Once in a while one hears of something that has all the newness of a freshly-minted coin. A rural informant reveals that sunflowers are planted around the edges of turkey-runs to keep the birds from flying over the fence. The seeds are eaten—but that is of secondary importance.

The whole explanation depends upon aerodynamics as applied to turkeys. Unlike their wild ancestors, modern domestic turkeys cannot attain great altitudes in flight. They're too heavy. But they can and do fly over a six-foot fence. The expense of 10 or 12-foot fences has now been found unnecessary. Just plant sunflowers along the inside of an ordinary low fence.

As the turkeys grow, so do the sunflowers. By the time the turkeys can fly, the sunflowers have reached their full height of 10 or 12 feet. Flexing his primary wing muscles, a gobbler eyes the distant world of unknown delights and prepares for the take-off. Then he sees the close-standing ranks of tall sentinels, and changes his mind. He hasn't sense enough to know he could thrash right through the sunflowers and escape.

Instead, noticing the gaze of a nearby hen-turkey, he expands his wattles, throws out his chest, drags his wings and struts. He didn't want to fly over the fence anyway.

How About It, Mr. Storch?

If you expect to be nothing more than a string-pulled puppet for labor bosses, be frank enough to say so. But if you want the voters of this district to feel that you plan to represent THEM, how about disclaiming the boastful endorsements of these carpetbag groups, and sending them packing back to their distant homes?

Your publicity says you are a Democrat. Mr. Storch. How about that? Were you the free choice of your local party organization—or were you hand-picked at Harrisburg by a handful of CIO stooges? And where do you stand on Democratic Party principles?

Your campaign has been turned into a defiant and law-busting attack on the Taft-Hartley Labor Act, which, good or bad, is now part of the law of the land. Voting for the final passage of that bill over the President's veto were more Democrats in the two Houses of Congress than voted to uphold the law.

Which half of the Democratic Party are you with—the little half, embracing the radical fringe and the semi-Communists—or the larger half of old-line, Jeffersonians who voted for the labor law you are campaigning to bring into disrepute?

These two counties are sprinkled with Democrats who are just as firm believers in law and order, in equal justice, in Constitutional principles, as anyone else. The Reuther indorsement of your campaign was an insult to those who hold such patriotic views. Where are you with regard to those who believe in one law for all, and in the duty of citizens to uphold the law—are you with them or against them?

If you were to be elected to Congress, Mr. Storch, the first thing you would have to do would be to take an oath to uphold the U. S. Constitution and the laws under it. How could you conscientiously take such an oath when your campaign has been turned into a wholesale defiance of the laws themselves and the enforcement of them under the Constitution?

Your publicity lists us as belonging to numerous patriotic and veterans organizations, Mr. Storch. In some of them you have served as officer. You are aware that nearly all these organizations have, in their charters and their constitutions, a pledge to uphold the Constitution of the United States and the laws enacted thereunder. How do you reconcile your membership in such patriotic associations, and your pledge implied by your membership, with the campaign now being conducted in your name and with your knowledge to turn your election into a law-busting defiance of the Constitution and the degradation of the law-enforcement agencies of this nation?

You know, of course, that the right of every American citizen to make up his own mind how he is going to vote in any election is a basic, inviolable right, never to be sacrificed if this American people are to remain free.

You know, too, that the entire political weight of your chief backers has risen out of their power to tell union members that they have to vote and contribute a certain way in political contests—and make that order stick, in a host of cases, by threatening to see that the man or woman who disobeys is fired.

Is that your idea of how to conduct a free election? Is that your idea of how to live up to and support the freedom intended by the American Constitution? If you were elected, would you fight to stop that infamous practice—or would you fight to protect the use of such tactics by the labor bosses?

You are a resident of the Bucks-Lehigh District, Mr. Storch. Presumably you are aware of its proud history—how the original William Penn settlements were established in this region, how much of the origin of the American nation came from this area, how strong a part was played in the writing and adoption of the American constitution by the antecedents of those now living here.

Presumably you are proud to live in this district—you ought to be, certainly. Do you believe in home rule? Do you believe that it is the right of the men and women who are qualified electors of this district to make their own free and untrammeled choice for Congressman?

If so, how do you reconcile that belief in home rule with the fact that the money, pressure, brains and publicity for your campaign are coming from carpetbag invaders to this district—that your chief supporters are persons who never lived in Bucks or Lehigh Counties—and never intend to?

One last question, Mr. Storch. You know your own packround and experience—or lack of it—with legislative matters of the type in which Congress deals. And you are aware that your Republican opponent, Mr. Franklin H. Lichtenwalter, has a most distinguished record in precisely this type of work, as Assemblyman at Harrisburg since 1938.

In that time Mr. Lichtenwalter has shown striking ability and leadership, as well as gaining invaluable experience. He rose first to Republican floor leader in the House, and this year became Speaker.

Now, here's the final question, Mr. Storch—and it's one of those sixty-four dollar questions:

If you were someone else—not the candidate—wouldn't you look over the two men in the race, and on the basis of experience, proven ability and demonstrated leadership, vote毫不犹豫 for the Republican nominee, Mr. Lichtenwalter?

Food Situation in Germany Kept Coal Output Low

a minimum of $60,000 tons per week, or about 30 per cent above the peak allotment in 1946.

The increase in domestic allotment will mainly benefit industrial enterprises, which in this way will be enabled to raise their output and thus to contribute more efficiently to the projected expansion of foreign trade.

Apart from coal exports, foreign trade of the merged zones in 1947 will be determined by the working of the bizonal merger agreement.

This agreement provides for the cooperation of the American and British occupation authorities and of the representatives of the German states in formulating an import-export program for the rehabilitation of the German economy.

A major objective of this rehabilitation program is to put the merged zones of Germany back on a self-supporting basis, i.e., to develop exports to a point where they cover imports.

Meanwhile, however, the occupying powers must bear the cost not only of the basic program for the prevention of "disease and unrest", but also of the raw material and equipment imports required to "prime the pump" of German export industries. Certain funds are already in hand for this second part of the program including the receipts from exports of 1946-46, some former German external assets transferred to the occupying powers under agreements with neutral countries, and the credits negotiated with the U.S. Commercial Corporation.

The United Kingdom is participating in the program in two ways. It bears half of the costs of sending basic necessities to the merged American and British zones, and it finances half of the funds needed for "priming the pump" of the area's industry.

Whenever, in the future, additional advances should be required, the United Kingdom also will bear an equal share with the United States.

The expected increase in imports will necessitate but also make possible larger German exports. In order to facilitate exports, the occupation authorities have authorized foreign businessmen to correspond with prospective German trading partners.

Export deliveries which, however, include coal, reached $34 million. Imports excluding basic necessities imported by the occupation authorities were approved to the sum of $10 million.

These amounts still far below the levels that must be reached in order to fulfill the bizonal program, but they represent a material improvement in comparison with preceding periods.

Sportsmen's Briefs

By JOE ELBRESON

Rough, but fun . . . in spite of the fact that everyone aboard got a drenching when our ship struck heavy seas (all except those who were seasick and were sprawled out below deck), six of us did have some sport when we fished out of Brielle last Sunday aboard the "Dauntless."

Bass formed the main part of the catch, with ling, fluke, and congers also being caught. We were fishing bottom about eight miles out over the wrecks and in the afternoon we drift-fished inshore for tuck for a short time. Clams were our only bait outside, and squid for tuck inshore. High man caught 20 fish.

The ship's pool was won by one of our party, George Polyak, who landed a 4½-pound fluke. Others in our party were S. E. Scott, Jack McGinley, Henry McCahan and Al Rodgers.

A wonderful sight . . . the 186 pheasants being raised by George Blatill, Sr., in Edgeley, for the Bristol Fish & Game Protective Association and the Edgely Rod & Gun Club, as they strut and scurry around their big, wire-enclosed pen. The birds, seven weeks old on Wednesday, have grown tremendously since they were received as day-old chicks in the early part of June. They are strong and sturdy in appearance, and it is possible to distinguish some color in some of the largest of the birds.

Only one bird has been lost in the last several weeks. That happened a few days ago when they were released to the large pen. One of the pheasants, apparently thinking he was at liberty, immediately took off in flight and banged into the wire at the far end of the pen. The impact broke its neck. This experience has appeared to have a sobering influence on the remainder of the flock, since none have attempted the same stunt since then.

A surprising thing to me is the fact that very, very few sportsmen appear interested enough to stop by and see "their" pheasants. The same unconcern, however, has been the case since the initial call for volunteer aid in constructing the pens (cutting over 200 fence posts, digging over 200 post holes, placing the wire, etc.). It will be interesting to note how many more than the half dozen men who did help suddenly become extremely interested when November 1st rolls around and the question arises as to where to hunt!

New to me . . . I knew that most artificial lures, worms and live bait would take bass at Silver Lake, but not until one day this week did I learn that another type of bait is attractive to the bass in this water.

I was driving past the lake as a fisherman landed a good-sized fish. Not being able to determine what species it was I drove over and saw a fine 13-inch bass. The fisherman from Philadelphia was experiencing his first catch. He didn't know how to remove the hook; every time the fish jumped the fisherman jumped, too. Noting a can of helgramites by his tackle box, I inquired as to what he was planning to do with them. He replied that he hoped to use them to catch more bass, just as he had with the one that was at our feet.

SLAVEN SOUTHPAWS ROHM & HAAS NINE

"Johnny" Slaven southpawed the Rohm and Haas team to its 19th win of the season last evening on the Maple Beach field as the chemical workers beat the Soby Post team, of Langhorne, 4-1, in a Suburban League game.

Slaven held the Soby men to five hits and until the final inning had them blanked. A triple by Fleming and double by Reese scored the Soby's only run.

The losing hurler was "Pete" Everett who held the Rohm and Haas team to seven hits, three of which came from the bat of "Johnny" Dick and two of which were made by "Chuck" Klein. Only two of the winners' four markers were earned.

GOODWILL GAINS A FULL GAME ON THE FIFTH WARD CLUB

Victory on Third

MCCARTNEY PITCHES

Holds Fifth Ward Nine To Four Hits in Chalking
Up Victory

The Goodwill Hose team gained a full game on the Fifth Ward Sporting Club last evening as the hosemen rapped out a 10-4 victory on the Third Ward diamond.

Goodwill and Fifth Ward are battling for third spot in the first division of the Bristol Suburban League. The Warders are still ahead of the firemen by just one game.

Neil McCartney held the Fifth Ward team to four hits in chalking up the mound victory. McCartney had a streak of wildness in the seventh inning which made his victory harder. In this frame, Fifth Ward scored a pair of runs and still had the bags loaded when the third man went out.

Joe Elmer and "Boake" Carter had three hits each. It was Elmer's double with the bases loaded in the final inning which made victory decisive for the fire-fighters.

AMATEUR BOXING

8 ROUNDS, ST. ANN'S ARENA

First bout, 8:45 p.m.

HIGHLY-TOUTED CLUB TO SEEK BOUTS HERE

HIGHLY-TOUTED CLUB TO SEEK BOUTS HERE

The best amateur fighters in the Middle Atlantic district of the A. A. will report at St. Ann's Arena, Wood street, tonight, to seek bouts in the weekly boxing card promoted by Sammy Moffo and Elmer Yorty. First bout will go on at 8:45 o'clock.

Yesterday, Moffo received word that the highly-touted Fighting Irish of the Shackamaxon Club would come to Bristol to be pitted against the boys of the other clubs.

Other organizations which have promised to send fighters here are:

Cripus Attacks, John J. O'Malley,

Annunciation, Eastside, and the 20th Century, St. Ann's will also be represented by a group of boys.

It's almost a certainty that Cosmo

Greco, former Bristol boy, will have the gloves on this week. Greco was scheduled to fight last Friday night but his opponent failed to appear.

Moffo has several boys in Greco's fighting class and will match him with one.

The largest crowd of the season is anticipated, as the promoters have reduced the price of admission.

That, coupled with an outstanding card of bouts, is expected to fill the seats to capacity.
